<sup>3</sup> American Religion Data Archive's estimates for the Jewish population were derived from Singer & Grossman (2001).
